FOOD FOR THOUGHT.

It is a somewhat sad fact that some people have a higher polish on their boots than on their manners. If their heads were only where their feet are how they would shine.

If we would have powerful minds, we must think; if we would have faithful hearts, we must love; if we would have strong muscles, we must labor. These include nearly all that is valuable in this life.

The man who professes to believe that evil is only the under side of good, the dark side of the moon, and properly a component part of human life, will never have the satisfaction of dying from inflammation of the brain.

All things must change. Friends must be torn asunder and swept along in the current of events, to see each other seldom and, perchance, no more. Forever and ever in the eddies of time and accident we whirl away.

We all love pleasure and abhor sorrow. No one will choose a cloudy sky and a rough path; but these evils have their good parts, and those who really long for peace and happiness will try to find out and extract them, instead of hurrying along resentfully or with forced gayety.

The old theory about getting up early is, at last, happily exploded. One can now go to bed and get up when he pleases without having that fatal proverb flung in his teeth. The higher philosophy tells us that even if we do "shorten our days," as the saying is, by getting up late, we at least lengthen our nights by the same process.

"Blessed are the pure in heart for they shall see God!" When? In the better life to come, no doubt, but here also, and with a most satisfying vision. You are like one whom a kind and faithful guide is leading along a lonely and dangerrus road through the darkness of the night. The form of your guide you can scarcely see, but his words of comfort and assurance are in your ears all the while; you trust him, for you know that he perfectly knows the way, and you commune with him as you go along. Now and then, as the clouds break and the stars shine out for a little, you think you can almost see his face. By and by the morning comes, and you see as you are seen and know as you are known. But the comfort, the joy, the assurance of his presence and his guidance you have had the whole night long; and daylight gives you a fuller revelation of that which you knew already.

A PORTRAIT.

Two eyes I see, whose softest blue
Rivals the summer skies;
Two lips, beside whoose cheery hue
The bright carnation dies.
A ringlet here,
A ringlet there,
An antique comb to keep them straight,
A sweet and simple face, most fair—
Pressed on my heart is this portrait.

PLODDING JIM.

"Jim Dunn, do you know your lesson yet?"

The question, uttered in an irritated tone, came from a young man who had been reading a newspaper, waiting for the tardy boy of his class.

"N-no, sir; I don't believe I do, quite," was the hesitating reply.

"Are you aware what time it is?"

"One o'clock, sir," said young Dunn.

He knew that well enough. Had not his eyes lingered on the tardy hands of the old moon-faced clock, and thence gone roving out through the window to where the fields were sleeping in the noonday haze? And then he was so hungry!

"Jim, come here. I can't understand what makes you so stupid!" said the master; and taking the book, he proceeded to hastily review point after point.

"Do you understand this?" he asked, "and this and that?,"

Jim's brow lightened. He was more pleased with himself that things looked clearer, and certain doubts vanished, and his hearty "Oh, thank you, sir!" made the teacher smile.

"You're very slow, Dunn; very slow. I don't think I ever saw a fellow just like you; but I guess what you learn you learn."

That was just it—what Jim Dunn knew he knew thoroughly.

"Well, if here isn't Jim, just at dinner is done!" cried his sister Anne.

"And every bit of the pudding gone," said Oscar, the next oldest brother. "I made sure you'd stay all day."

"Poor boy!" sighed his mother; "he always seems to be behind in everything. Ever since he was a baby he has been slow."

Jim sat down, however, and ate the scraps. Nobody seemed to think that Tom would care.

"I don't know what we shall do with that boy," Dr. Dunn often said, when talking over the prospects of their children. Charley inclines to the law, and Oscar will be a doctor; but what ability has Jim for anything?" He is so slow and plodding, so little ambitious, that I am discouraged when I think of his future.'

"Poor Jim!" said Mrs. Dunn, half sighing, half-laughing; "he is the black sheep of the family. When he was a little fellow, I used often be startled by the owl-like wisdom of his face. I never thought then that it was dullness. He can't help it. His motions are slow, his mind is tardy, but I hope he will make his way in the world."

Jim was the butt of all the family, but it did not seem to anger him at all. He knew he was slow. Charley could play brilliantly, sing a song with excellent effect, play any game well.

Oscar, his youngest brother, was famous for his compositions and his power of elocution. All the rest excelled, outstripped him, and yet he plodded on patiently.

"Going to the theatre to-night?" asked a well-dressed young man of Jim, as they left the store together. This was four years later, and Jim was one of the clerks in Dolman & Dolman's great establishment, and so slow and undemonstrative that the other clerks were always chaffing him. He thought for a moment, rattled some loose coins that were in his pocket, and said:

"No."

"Have you ever been?" queried the other.

Jim looked at him in his usual ddliberate way; and replied: "No."

"Then you don't know anything of life."

"Then I don't want to," responded Jim.

"By the way, where are you boarding?" asked his friend, pulling on a pair of very tight gloves. Jim never wore gloves.

"At Glen's, in Holbrook Street," said Jim.

"Oh, you're slow. Why that's 'way down town."

"That's why I board there," said Jim. I only pay four dollars a week. Good evening."

"The meanest fellow I ever saw," muttered Dick Dalton, as he planted his fancy cane as heavily as its fragility would permit on the sidewalk.

Jim gained his boarding house, a tall, rusty-looking tenement, in the fourth story of which was his room. It was a very desolate-looking apartment, for, save in the coldest weather, Jim never had a fire.

There were three shelves, full of excellent books, and at a table at the side of the room stood something that looked like a wooden arm chair. Bits of pine, a few tools and a paper filled with saw-dust, kept them company.

Of course Jim got frugal meals in this place, A widow and her daughter kept the house, letting nearly all the rooms to lodgers; but Jim's quiet ways and pleasant face had won an entrance to their hearts, and they took him to their table for a small consideration.

Jim ran up stairs as soon as he reached the house. He never ran up stairs in any other place, but there was an attraction there which was better than the amusements to which his fellow-clerks devoted themselves.

No sooner had he seated himself at the table and taken up a screw, than some one knocked at the door. At the low "come in," his eldest brother presented himself, dressed in the height of fashion, handsome and even imposing in appearance.

"Well, Jim, so these are your lodgings, my boy." said the young man. "Not much style, I must say."

"Not much," said Jim, cheerfully. "Have you just come from home?"

"Yes, and everything is going on about the same. Father is mightly pleased that I have got my shingle up."

"And are you propspering?" asked Jim, with a sidelong glance upon the ivory cane, the kid gloves and the gold chain.

"Oh, so-so. Of course it has taken a good deal of money to furnish my office."

"I thought father advanced you five hundred dollats," said Jim.

"So he did. The old gentleman was very good to mortgage the property—for I suppose you are informed of the fact—but things are so horribly expensive."

"What things?" asked Jim, drily.

"Everything—all things. To get business now-a-days, a fellow must make a show."

"And so you smoke ten cent cigars, give a supper now and then, treat your companions, and frequent the theatre," said Jim.

"Oh, hang it! Your blood's water, Jim; and besides, your position is different from mine. Things are expected from me. I must go into society. By-and-by I shall get a case that will pay me richly for all these sacrifices."

"Sacrifices!" repeated Jim, in a tone that made Charley's blood move faster, so that he said to himself, with the addition of an oath.

"The same old slow boy, with no more brains than an ox."

"You are still at the machine, I see," he said aloud, a moment after.

"Oh, yes; it costs next to nothing; and if it never succeeds, it gives me something to think about."

"You don't say that you ever think," was the sarcastic response.

"Well, now and then," was the slow rejoinder.

Charley rose, sauntered back and forth for a few moments, and then stood still, his handsome face reddening.

"I say, Jim, can't you lend me ten dollars? I'm absolutely out of cash."

"I never lend," said Jim.

Charley's breath grew short and quick. Some insulting speech was on the end of his tongue, for he felt both rage and contempt; but Jim, rising quietly, went to a desk and lifted the lid.

"If five dollars will do you any good, you are welcome to them," he said. "They are all I have by me,"

"Jim, you're a good fellow!" gasped Charley, his tongue yet hot with the words he had intended to say.

Jim went once or twice to his brother's office, and did not like it. "Why should the young lawyer spend a hundred dollars in pictures?" he asked himself indignantly; "and why does he keep the company of such men as I have met there?"

One day Jim received a letter from his brother Oscar:

DEAR OLD JIM:—I expect I shall have to leave college. Things are going wrong at home. I don't suppose any one has told you. They seem to think you have all you can do to take care of yourself; and so you have, I suppose. Charley has been an awful weight upon father, and this year the crops have all failed, and father is disabled from work by rheumatism. I don't care much about myself; I only studied medicine to please father, and should rather be almost anything else.

I think I could write for the newspapers. Can't you get me a place in some store? and I could write evenings, and live with you. Think it over, for I'm sure father is going to lose all his property. Charley plays billiards, and I'm afraid cards. Write me as soon as you can what can be done for me.

Jim wrote in less than a week. His employer wanted an under salesman. Then he set himself to look carefully into his father's affairs.

Everything there was going to ruin. The were nearly heart-broken, and no one thought for a moment of looking to him.

But nevertheless he laid his plans. To pay the mortgage was quite impossible, qut he hired some comfortable rooms in the old house where he stayed, sold what he could from the stock of the farm, had the necessary furniture brought to town, and installed his father and mother in a comfortable home. The months passed. The old folks learned to depend upon hira, and his sister found a situation as bookkeeper.

One day a gentleman called upon Jim, and was invited into his room. "You've been at work fifteen years on this machine, you say?" remarked the gentlemen when he had examined it.

The speaker was a business man, whose favor was almost equal to a fortune.

"Yes, sir," said Jim, quietly; "I was always a plodder."

"Well, you've plodded to some purpose," was the answer. "I am very sure there's money enough in it to make you a rich man."

Jim grew very red, and the room seemed to go around for a moment.

"Thank you," he made reply. "I should like to be rich for the sake of others.

And so, eventually, plodding Jim won the race, and became the practical, efficient and prosperous man of the family.

Chewing Gum.

Among the quiet little manufacturers of the country is that of chewing gum. Only one factory exists in New York city, and the few others are in New England, New York State, Ohio, Illinios, and Tennesse. The gum is sold by druggists, grocers and confectioners in cities, and any country grocery that hasn't it is consider incomplete. Gum from spruce trees was exclusively used until recently, when it found a rival is gum mastic, a white and attractive article made from paraffine, which is sweetened. The consumption of this chewing gum in the U. S. is about thirty tons yearly; that of spruce gum somewhat less, and that of a gum made in Tennesse from balsam tolu, and sold in the Southern States, about twenty tons. Lately a material has been used styled "rubber gum." It is from the sap of the sapotæ tree of South and Central America. The sap like that of the India rubber tree, has a milky look. The sap was first imported into the United States with a view of melting it with india rubber, in order to produce a cheaper article than the latter. It was found to be impliable, and therefore useless for that purpose. It had long been chewed by South and Central American Indians, and found useful in allaying thirst. Experiments were therefore made here in puryifying it for chewing, and with final success. It is tastless and has the merit of lasting longer than the other gums, which more quickly dissolve and crumble in the mouth. So great it its ducility that a piece half an inch wide, after being heated in the mouth, can be stretched into a thread a hundred feet long. Its consumption is about fifty tons a year. Chewing gum does not, like tobacco, require that the saliva be expectorated; it does not, like smoking, excite the nerves, nor like a superabundance of food or drink, hurtfully overload the stomach.

Reducing His Salary.

A congregation, anxious to get rid of their pastor, were considerably perplexed how to do it without hurting his feelings. After considerable discussion they concluded to inform him they were obliged to reduce his salary. A delegation was appointed to wait on him and notify him of the fact. "Brethern," was his reply; "I have been with you in prosperity, and I will never desert you in adversity."

Flame Colored Kids.

A young man gets on the train and seats himself opposite ne. He wears flame-colored kids and a poodle dog. Now, I do not object to a man wearing any kind or color of kids, and love of the angels, how I do hate a poode dog. The young man holds the poodle in his lap, smooths out the blue ribbon apund his neck, placidly strokes his whikers, and languidly stares at me. As I bok at them I notice how much they look alike. Father and son perhaps. As I think the thought, the dog snarls and larks an indignant denal. Presently the young man, with a painful effort opens the conversation by saying:

"Wha's news?"

I tell him the elections have all gone one way and he says:

"Haw."

And presently adds:

"Who's 'elected?"

I tell him Cornell is elected in New York.

"Ya-as," he says. "I've been in Noo Yawk. Cornell," he added, brightening up, "Cornell he's a college or something 'f that sort, ain't he?"

I explain to him as well as I can the difference between A'onzo B. and the university at Ithaca. The young man looks painfully astonished upon learning they are not the same man.

"Who runs 'gainst him?" he asks.

"Robinson."

"A, ya-as," he says. "Know him. Runs a circus. Funniest thing 'f the kind you ever saw. Tent all striped, like—like—like bedtick, you know."

Then he paused and rested himself, and presently said:

"Wha' you writin'?"

I told him I was getting up a little work for the paper that honored itself by securing, at an immense annual outlay, my valuable though erratic, service.

"Wha's it's name?" the young man asked feebly, at the same time fondling his dog.

"The Hawkeye," I told him, "for sale by all the news dealers, and only two dollars a year in advance. The best paper in America, and the finest advertising medium in the West; devoted to—"

"Ah ya-as," he said, brightening up, "and you're th' feller they call 'Hawkeye?'"

I admitted that sometimes people who didn't know my other name called me that.

"Oh, ya-as," he said, "I know you."

I flushed and bowed and he went on.

"I know you. Heard of you often. Seen you play once. You're the Injun chief in Buffalo Bill's party, ain't you?"

Then he leaned back, exhausted. And I—

Well, I felt about as tired as he did.

A Detective's Adventure.

One pleasant evening recently two men were seated in a cosy little room not far from the Criminal Courts. One, in conversation concerning criminals. One, in connected with a Chicago agency, was a detective remarked the dectective, after a pause in the conversation, "I will tell you a peculiar little incident that happened several years ago to a brother detective, which will illustrate how luck sometimes assists us in accomplishing an object, which otherwise might be unattainable. "Several years ago," he continued as he ejected a cloud of smoke from his mouth, "a noted forger was wanted very badly in Chicago where he had been indulging in such crookedness as rendered him liable to occupy the penitentiary for a term of years if he were caught. The case was placed in Pinkerton's hands and one of his men detailed to work it up. He was fortunate enough to obtain a clew to the much wanted individual's whereabouts, and following it up he at length spotted his man at Toronto, Canada, which you know is on Lake Ontario. The detective threw himself in the way of the forger, became acquainted with him under an assumed name, and gradually ingratiated himself in his favor. Forgery not being an extraditable offense it was impossible to make the arrest in Canada, so the detective was obliged to adopt another line of tactics. He made known his intention of crossing over into the States, and the forger determined to go to the boat to see him off. Once on board, the detective kept him engrossed in interesting conversation, and with such consummates tact did he play his part that the crooked gentleman did not notice that the boat had started until it was far out in the lake, for they had gone below to take a social glass at parting. When the forger found the boat gradually receding from the Canada shore, with no possibility of getting back immediately, he fumed and swore for a time, but seeing that did not better matters in the least, cooled down and determined to make the best of a bad job.

"As soon as that imaginary line in the middle of the lake which divides the two countries had been passed, the detective revealed himself, and, clapping on the nippers, arrested his man. They arrived on the other shore at length without adventure, and, boarding the lightning express on the Lake Shore and Michigan Southern that night, they started on their journey. There happened to be a few persons in the car in which the two sat. The detective was almost completely worn out from loss of sleep, and, as it was a through train, he determined to obtain a little Morpheus. Placing the prisoner on the inner side of the seat, he so disposed himself next him that he imagined the slighest move would awake him. The arrangements completed, he fell asleep in an easy state of mind. He does not know how long he slept until he awoke suddenly with a start, and found to his chargrin that the forger was gone. It is a rule of our agency that if a man is sent upon the trail of a depredator, and fails in bringing him back, he loses his place on the force, so that you see his reputation as well as his position, depended upon his prompt action. He quickly decided upon his line of action, and, walking with assumed carelessness through the entire train, he examined every nook and corner that the prisoner could possibly be stowed away in. His search was fruitless. On his return he was accosted by a brakeman, who inquired:

"'Are you looking for your friend?"

"The detective answered in the affirmative.

"'Oh,' said the brakeman, 'he got off at the last station where we stopped for water. He seemed as if he did'nt want to disturb your sleep, for he got over the back of the seat.'

"The detective then made known who he was, and inquired of the brakeman whether there was any possible chance of his getting back to the town that night. Very fortunately the train stopped a short distance ahead on a siding in order to allow a freight train going in the direction of this particular town to pass them. The conductor signaled it to stop, the detective got aboard, and in the course of an hour or so was standing in the little villiage where he desired to be. It was a primitive Ohio hamlet, and the only alleged hotel it could boast of the most wretched description. The detective concluded that he could do nothing at that late hour and in his exhausted condition; so he determined to obtain a little sleep and scour the country in the morning. With infinite difficulty he succeeded in arousing the sleepy landlord of the hostlery. 'There were no accommodations,' he said, in reply to the detective's questions, 'unless he was willing to occupy the same room and bed with another man.'

"The detective thought it was better than sleeping out, so he asked to be shown the room. He had just unrobed, and was about extinguishing the tallow dip, when something prompted him to take a look at his bedfellow. He did so, and what was his suprise to find his whilom prisoner snuggled up in the bedcloths. Accustomed as he was to repressing his feelings upon all occasions, he could scarcely retrain a joyful shout at his good fortune, and it was some time before he recovered sufficient calmness to act with coolness. After much self-congratulation he secured the forger's clothing to a piece of twine and supended them from the window. He then resumed a portion of his own clothing, and hid the remainder, locked the door, and placed the key in his pocket, and getting into bed he placed his revolver in such a position that, although out of sight, it was within easy reach, and sank into a peaceful slumber. In the morning he was awakened by the sound of some one talking in the room, and peering cautiously around he noticed the forger rummaging about, clothed only in an abbreviated undergarment and endeavoring manfully to give proper vent to his feelings in choice but emphatic expletives. His search for his clothing proving unavailing, he approached the bed opposite to investigate. As he did so, 'click' went the revolver, and the detective stood revealed to his astonished gaze. He started as if he had been struck, and before he could recover from his astonishment he was properly handcuffed and at the detective's mercy.

"He was soon assisted into his clothing; the next passing train was hailed and they arrived at their destination without further adventure."

"What became of the forger?" inquired the reporter, as the detective applied a lighted match to his cigar.

"Oh, he was tried soon afterward," was the reply, "and the evidence against him was of such an overwhelming character that he was convicted and sent up for a long term,"

Napoleon's Parents.

The family of Bonapartes were of pure Italian race; there was not a drop of French blood in any of them. Their ancestors had come from the main-land in the early history of Corsica, and their names are found mentioned in the annals of Genoa. Charles Bonaparte was a poor gentleman of excellent breeding and character, who married in his youth a young and romantic girl named Letizia Ramolino, who followed him in his campaigns up to the moment of the birth of Napoleon. It is impossible to say how much the history of Europe owes to the high heart and indomitable spirit of this soldierly woman. She never relinquished her authority in her family. When all her children were princes and potentates, she was still the severe, stern Madame Mere. The beauty and grace of Josephine Bauharnais never conquered her; the sweet Tyrolese prettiness of Maria Louisa won from her only a sort of contemptuous indulgence. When her mighty son ruled the continent, she was the only human being whose chidings he regarded or endured. She was faithful in her rebukes while the sun shone, and when calamity came, her undaunted spirit was still true and devoted to the fallen. Her provincial habits of economy stood her in good stead in her vigorous old age; she was rich when the Empire had passed away, and her grandchildren needed her aid. It must have been from her that Napoleon took his extraordinary character, for Carlo Bonaparte, though a brave soldier and an ardent patriot in his youth, was of an easy and genial temper, inclined to take the world as he found it, and not to insist too much on having it go in his especial way. After the cause of Corsican liberty was lost by the success of the French arms, he accepted the situation without regret, and becoming intimate with the conquerors, he placed as many of his family as possible on the French pension list. His sons Napoleon and Louis were given scholarships at Brienne and Autun, and his eldest daughter, Elise, entered the royal institution at St. Cyr. While yet in the prime of life, he died of the same deadly disease which was to finish Napoleon's days at St. Helena; and the heroic mother, her responsibilities becoming still heavier by this blow, lived for eight years longer amid the confusion and civil tumult which had become chronic in Corsica; and then, after the capture of the island by the English in 1793, she made her escape with her children to Marseilles, where she lived several years in great penury.

Clear the Kitchen.

A famous nobleman once called on Abernethy with reference to an inflamed eye. His lordship after waiting an hour for Abernethy to get through with a number of charity patients whom he never left to attend upon the highest nobleman, began the conversation by saying:

"Doctor, I wish you would examine this eye; I fear some deadly mischief is at work here."

"If you will sit there in my patient's chair, and let me do the talking, I will soon find out what is the matter with you."

A few sharp questions and the doctor concluded the interview with the following words:

"Your difficulty is not where you think it is, in your eye, but"—pointing his finger at the patient's enormous stomach—"is there, in your kitchen. Of course, when the kitchen is out of order, the garret and all the other rooms in the house are likely to be more or less affected. Now all you need to do is to clear the kitchen and the garret will require no special purification. Your lordship must do as the famous Duke of Wellington did on a well known occasion—cut off the supplies and the enemy will leave the citadel."

—The day fixed for the Princess Louise's return to Canada is said to be the 22d of January.

A Mad Wolf's Ravages.

During the month the peasents from the adjoining villiages had not collected together at a fair which was held at the settlement of Barvenkoff, district of Izume, Russia, and the male portion of the assembly had dispersed to the drinking shops to make bargains and drink each other's healths, leaving the women and children in charge of the carts. Suddenly there resounded through the square a heartrending shriek for assistance, and then all was quiet. The peasants rushed out of the drinking booths into the street, and before they had time to collect their thoughts there appeared from behind a building situated on the edge of the square, an enormous wolf. Everybody rushed in great confusion to their carts, shouting, "Mad wolf!" Meantime the gigantic wolf, frothing at the mouth and with his tongue hanging out, made for the carts. A dreadful tumult occured. The horses and oxen dashed in all directions, but the majority, getting entangled, fell, overturning the carts, while the noise made by the pigs, sheep, geese, fowls, etc., added to the uproar and confusion. The wolf when within a short distance of the first group of carts, turned round, sprang on to a woman who was running past, and in a moment she was prostrate on the ground, having lost her nose, scalp and the lower part of her face. The wolf then ran further and attacked a small lad of about seven years of age, but just at that time a pig rushed at the wolf and bit its tail. The wolf turned on his assailant, but not before it had bitten the boy's face and hand. Leaving the pig, the wolf ran down the main street, attacked a woman with a baby, then two boys about four years of age, and having bitten their heads through to the brain, rushed up the street, and after biting several other persons, turned off upon the railroad. By this time a large crowd, headed by the village elder, and armed with whips, guns, scythes, etc., gave chase to the terrible animal. They came up with the wolf about one mile from the village, and a peasant, allowing it to approach him within about fifteen paces, shot the animal straight in its open jaw. Notwithstanding the wound he had received, the wolf sprang up and attacked the peasant. The latter did not lose his presence of mind, and struck the animal with the butt end of his gun, which shattered at the blow, and the wolf seized the peasant by the side, but owing to the man wearing three coats his skin was only scratched. The courageous man then firmly gripped the animal with both hands. During this struggle between a man and a mad wolf the crowd which had come up hesitated through fear to attempt the rescue of their comrade. Fortunately a local policeman galloped up at this juncture, and drawing his revolver shot the wolf through the head. The wolf had bitten no less than twenty-two persons, ten of whom are in a dangerous state. The sufferers were isolated from the rest of the inhabitants and medical aid was at once administered to them. It is reported that the wolf came from the settlement at Dovgenikty (situate about eighteen miles from Barvenkoff buried, but so carelessly that on the following morning his body was found scattered about.

It Wasn't a Hoss-Blanket"

She had brought that spread forty-one miles over a dirt road, and she was so sure of taking the first premium that she brought her a new back comb and a pair of red stockings on the strength of it. When the momentous hour arrived, her spread was left out in the cold. The woman hadn't yet recovered from her shock when along came Andrew Whitcomb, picked up a corner of the spread, and called out.

"Hey, old woman, how much for this hoss-blanket?"

That was too much. The woman picked up a handy broom-handle and gave him several first premiums over the head. Andrew escaped to the street, pulled off his coat, and he was daring the old lady an her bedspread to come on when a policeman took him in charge.

"How mean it was of you to add insult to injury!" exclaimed his honor as Andrew kicked the sawdust in front of the desk.

"I thought it was a hoss-blanket—I really did!" persisted the prisoner.

"I am afraid you have been drinking."

"Your honor, I cannot tell a lie—yes, I had been drinking."

"What?"

"Water."

"Water—um? Well I can't help it. If water affected you that way it won't change our prices here a bit. I should fine you $5."

"I'll pay, of course, but I tell you I thought that was a hoss-blanket!"

"Can't help what you thought; hand the money to the Clerk."

"I'll hand the money to the Clerk, but I must insist that it was a hoss-blanket!"

"I don't wan't any more talk. You'd better go."

"I'll go, of course, but if that wasn't a hoss-blanket, I never saw one."

The Longevity of Icebergs.

Icebergs are subjected to disintegration in somewhat the same manner as rocks. They are full of crevasses, into which the water formed by melting penetrates; in winter this water freezes, and by its expansion all through the glacier a rupture of the mass ensues. "It is highly probable," he says, "that most of the icebergs afloat in winter are in such a condition that a very slight cause is sufficient to make them burst because of their state of internal tension. Every polar traveller can tell how a shot, the driving-in of an ice-anchor, or any other sudden vibration, has brought about catastrophes; cases have even occurred in which the sound of the voice alone was sufficient. An iceberg is always an unpleasant neighbor." So many are the causes which tend to destroy icebergs that the author concludes that "no berg exists which could withstand them more than ten years, and that commonly the life of a berg is much shorter." However this may be, doubtless the much larger Antarctic bergs last very much longer, as must necessarily occur because of the greater uniformity of the climate to which they are exposed. The iceberg into which the Arizona ran recently must have been an unusually solid one.

You meet in this world with false mirth as often as with false gravity; the grinning hypocrite is not a more uncommon character than the groaning one. As much light discourse comes from a heavy heart as from a hollow one, and from a full mind as from an empty head.

A Girl and a Bear.

About a month ago Miss Alice Corey, of New York city, came to visit her uncle, a German, who owns a small farm in the mountains, six miles northwest of Hunter's Range, Pa. Miss Corey is about sixteen years old, and her parents are well to do. Her uncle has a daughter, Clara, also aged about sixteen years. Her father having but one son, Clara has for years helped to do the work on the farm, and she has become an expert shot with a rifle. She has a mania for hunting, and frequently goes into the forest in search of game. A few days ago Clara invited her cousin to accompany her on a hunting expedition. They started from the house shortly after breakfast. Alice with a double-barrelled gun and Clara with a rifle. After scouring the woods for several hours without much success they visited "Dark Swamp." This swamp embraces several hundred acres, is densely wooded, and bears are frequently seen there. The girls reached the edge of the swamp at noon, and started into the thicket They had gone but a short distance when Miss Corey, who was walking a few yards behind her cousin, heard a crackling noise in the bushes a short distance back. Looking around, she saw a large black bear coming toward her. Clara, who had frequently encountered the shaggy monsters, called to her frightened cousin to come to her. She then drew her rifle to her shoulder and, taking deliberate aim at the animal, awaited until it came within easy range, and then fired. The bear uttered a howl of pain, and fell bleeding. As Clara's rifle was a single-barrelled one, she seized the double-barrelled gun from her cousin, and discharged both barrels at the infuriated animal, in the hope of killing it outright. But, with the disappearance of the smoke from the gun, the bear was seen writhing, but not dead. The brave young woman then approached cautiously to within reaching distance of the wounded animal, and, taking from a large leather belt encircling her waist a bone-handled deer knife, plunged it to the hilt into the bear's neck. At this moment the dying monster gave a sudden lunge and fastened its sharp claws into the girl's skirts, pulling her down. Her frightened cousin ran about wildly and screamed at the top of her voice, but as there was no house within two miles, her cries were not heard. She then returned to where Clara was still struggling with the animal. The bear still held the girl in his grasp, but was rapidly growing weaker. The girl was all the time using her knife with good effect. She dealt the dying animal blow after blow until it finally released its hold and rolled over dead. Though very much exhausted and considerably scratched by the bear's claws, Clara, with the assistance of her cousin, was soon able to walk. They marked the spot where the dead bear lay, and then returned home. Clara's father and brother drove to the swamp and brought the bear in, which, when dressed, weighed 340 pounds. The skin is to be sent to a New York taxidermist to be stuffed, and it souvenir of her terrible struggle and fortunate escape.

Quails and Pigeons.

There is a physician in San Francisco who is an iconoclast in the broadest conception of the term. To shatter an idol, a time honored truism or a popular delusion gives the gentleman as great a delight as the discovery of a new and interesting disease. To disprove an accepted article of faith in religion, political economy or medicine he has been known to devote weeks or months of study, and in some instance to undergo actual suffering and deprivation, successes alone repaying him for all his efforts and trouble. He is now engaged in disproving by actual demonstration the popular belief that a man cannot eat a quail a day for thirty consecutive days. A reporter recently called on the gentleman to learn how the experiment is progressing. The reporter found the doctor, who is a hearty, healthful, rosy-faced Teuton, in his office on Kearney street.

"Well, doctor, how are the quail faring?"

"Not nearly as well as I am, thank you."

"How did you happen to enter into the undertaking?"

"Well, I was seated at a table with some friends a few weeks ago, when the old subject of a quail a day came up for discussion. All the gentlemen saving myself supported the theory. As a matter of course, wagers were offered that the diet could not be sustained, and I accepted them. When I disprove a thing I always attempt to do it thoroughly. I wagered $800 that I could eat one quail each day for thirty days, and after the wager had been accepted proposed to do more. I am to eat two quail and one pigeon a day for the specified time."

"How long have you been engaged in the task?"

"This is my fifteenth day."

"What effect has it had upon you?"

"None whatever, physically or mentally."

"Tell me about the arrangement of the diet."

"I eat the two quail for lunch at noon, and the pigeon in the evening, for dinner. I am allowed to have them cooked in any manner I please, but thus far have not changed my first order to the cook. The quail I have served as a fricassee, the pigeon I have fried and served with a butter gravy. As the men with whom I made the wager supply the game, I am having a rather happy time of it. It is nonsense to suppose that bird-meat should have any more deleterious effects on a person's physical condition than meat of any other kind. In point of fact it is less harmful as an article of regular diet, being lighter and more easily digested. Why, when I finish with this wager I will offer to bet $1,000 that I can continue the diet for thirty days more. I am confident that, unless I meet with some accident, I will win my wager."

The doctor certainly does not look like a man suffering in any degree in mind and body, yet those who uphold the old theory say that the critical time does not arrive until after twenty or twenty-five days are passed. The result is looked forward to with interest.

WHAT could be more intensely American than the act of the Yankee who, on visiting an Italian convent and being shown a lamp which had not been permitted to go out in five centuries, quickly stepped up to it and blew it out, with the remark, "Well, I rather guess it's out now."

The Maine muddle is growing more complicated and may yet become serious.

Gen. Lamson, President of the Senate, on Monday sent a letter to the Senathe announcing that he had assumed the duties of Governor, whereupon Senator Ellis was chosen President pro tem.

On Tuesday both branches of the legislature assembled without disturbance, the Republicans absenting themselves.

Gen. Chamberlin, who has command of the state militia, refuses to recognize the authority of Gov. Lamson, answering that it is not in his province to decide constitutional questions but maintain the peace.

The Fusionists will choose a Governor to-morrow.

BAYARD.

The best man in the democratic party for the office of the chief magistrate of the nation is the Hon. Thomas F. Bayard, of Deleware. Against the purity and elevation of his character not a word can be said, and his nomination would exclude from the canvass the miserable personal accusations which disgraced the good name of the American people in the last presidential canvass. The issues would be made upon questions of public policy, and it would not be possible to deny that democratic success would raise a pure and capable citizen to the head of the government. Mr. Bayard is distinguished among public men for his force of conviction, consistency of public conduct, and inflexible adherence to principle. If the democratic party has left a political creed, or has preserved any connection with its past traditions Mr. Bayard is its ablest and most conspicuous representative. He would not be an unknown quantity, to calculate whose value it would be necessary to make an accurate analysis of the forces and tendencies behind his candidature. His past action and his known qualities would be a sufficient assurance as to the action of his administration in almost any given emergency. It is just because he is such a positive and definite force in Politics that the aims and policy of an administration formed by him cannot be misrepresented or concealed that he is not in favor with those leaders of the democratic party whose self confidence is only equalled by their genius for blundering. —Baltimore American.

The Great Unwritten Law.

The supervising architects of the movement for the nomination of General Grant for a third term are popularly believed to be Roscoe Conkling, Senator from New York, and J. Don. Cameron, Senator from Pennsylvania. The Republicans of these States are expected to give the movement an impetus which will send it over smaller States in a ground swell defying opposition. In view of this fact it is interesting to recall what the Republicans of the States of Conkling and Cameron thought of the third term idea a year or two ago.

On the 8th of September, 1875, the Republicans of New York, assembled in convention at Saratoga, unanimously

Resolved, That we declare our unalterable opposition to the election of any President for a third term.

The Republicans of Pennsylvania were as explicit but not so laconic when, in the State Convention of 1875 6, they also

Resolved, That we declare a firm and unqualified adherence to the unwritten law of the Republic, which wisely, and under the sanction of the most venerable examples, limits the Presidential service of any citizen to two terms; and we, the Republicans of Pennsylvania, in recognition of this law, are unalterably opposed to the election to the Presidency of any person for a third term.—Phila. Times.

Our Washington Letter.

Washington, D. C., Jan. 10th, 1880.

Since the holidays Congress has finally disposed of none but private bills, these being mostly for pensions referred by the Interior Department. The House has given two days to discussion of the amended rules, the changes being the work of Speaker Randall, and Representatives Stephens, Blackburn, Fryer, and Garfield, but have made little progress. The first difficulty was found in the requirement that the River and Harbor bill should go through the committee on appropriations, and this change was opposed bitterly. In the Senate, which has held short sessions when it has had any, only two measures of importance have been introduced. They are explained below.

A large number of petitions are being received by members of both Houses, in favor of the Weaver bill, which provides for the payment of soldiers of the late war the difference in value between the greenbacks received by them and gold. I do not think the bill will ever be reported. If it is, it will receive very few votes.

No Ohio Republican can fill the seat of Senator Thurman in the Senate, but I think four of every five Democratic Senators will be glad that Garfield rather than any other Republican is to make the attempt. Judge Thurman will be missed especially in the Judiciary Committee, but in all subjects of importance in general legislation he was and is authority among Senators.

Senator Voorhees, whose "exodus" committee organized yesterday, purposes finding out whether or not radical politicians were instrumental in starting the movement, and what they intended to accomplish by it. The North Carolina emigrants pour through this city, and generally do not impress one with the idea that they are people who would revolutionize the politics of a state. Neither do they appear, generally, to be citizens whose citizenship would Maine has a duly organized Conservative Legislature for the first time in a quarter of a century. This morning's dispatches show that the radicals will attempt to capture House and Senate. They might as well attempt to capture the Kentucky Legislature.

Senator David Davis asks for an increase in the number of Judges of the U. S. Circuit Courts, and the formation from subordinate Judges of a court of appeals to decide many cases which would otherwise go to already over burdened Supreme Courts.

It seems to be certain that there will be no vote on Senator Bayard's resolution.

The meeting of Greenbackers here decided to call their regular convention at Chicago on the 9th of June. CARROLL.

Sherman's Pet Bank.

The annual report of the First National bank of New York shows that during the past year it has paid 120 per cent. in dividends, has carried $500,000 to its surplus fund, and has on hand an undivided surplus of $2?6,700. The capital stock of the bank is $500,000, and the profits during the past year have therefore been 250 per cent. It will be remembered that Senator Beck, during the extra session, called attention to the disgraceful and dangerous favoritism shown this bank by the secretary of the treasury placing at their disposal over thirty millions of government bonds, allowing them a commission of one-fourth of one per cent. on the bonds sold, and permitting Government balances of several million dollars to remain on deposit without security for five or six months. It is no wonder they can afford to claim such dividends.—Pottsville Chronicle.

A Pungent Picture of "Grantism."

However magnificent Gen. Grant's services to his country as a soldier, his civil administration was so bad that there came during his last term of office a word to be invented to describe and embody in itself all forms of political crimes, and that word was "Grantism". Under what it implied the Republican party fell to pieces, lost the control of State governments, of the Federal House and Senate, and very nearly the Presidency. Do the leaders suppose that the people have forgotten that fact in less than three years, that they are ready and eager to welcome back "Grantism" and what it involves ?—Evening Telegraph.

THE figures given by the New York Tribune almanac for the last presidential election go to show that the democratic party is rather a "numerous" institution to be killed off just now. Here are the figures :

Democratic vote	4,384,265
Republican "	4,033,_95
Greenback "	81,737
Prohibitionist vote	9,522
Democratic majority over all	159,711

The Unwritten Law in '76.

A good many of the delegates who will be in the next republican state convention were members of the conventions of 1875 and 1876 which declared "a firm and unqualified adherence to the unwritten law of the republic which wisely, and under the sanction of the most venerable examples, limits the presidential service of any citizen to two terms." This resolution was passed under the orders of the Cameron ring who were not then admirers of "Our Great Commander." Under the orders of the Cameron ring the next state convention will be required to declare for a third term and instruct a solid delegation from Pennsylvania for Grant. But a somersault of this kind is a trifling feat for the Pennsylvania republicans. No Chinese juggler can eat tow and bring out ribbons with the dexterity with which the republicans of Pennsylvania can swallow their most solemn declarations. Hence the repudiation of the "unwritten law of the republic" for the third term will be made without wincing. To such a moral and political condition has Camerounism reduced the once proud republican party of Pennsylvania. —Patriot.

Mr. J. Madison Wells, the Louisiana Returning Board Chief, has got to Washington and notified Hayes and Sherman that he expects to be reappointed Surveyor of the port of New Orleans, and according to all accounts, Wells has been promised another term. The President seems determined to make Returning Board frauds odious by keeping the Returning Board thieves before the country on full pay —to come out of the public treasury.

THE state debt was reduced $1,684,952, during the year 1879.

THE

SHONINGER ORGANS

PRONOUNCED UNANIMOUSLY AS THE BEST INSTRUMENTS.

Their comparative excellence is recognized by the Judges in their Report, from which the following is an extract:

"The B. SHONINGER ORGAN CO.'S exhibit as the best Instruments at a price rendering them possible to a large class of purchasers, having a combination of Reeds and Bells, producing novel and pleasing effects, containing many desirable improvements, will stand longer in dry or damp climate, less liable to get out of order, all the boards being made three-ply, put together so it is impossible for them to either shrink, swell or split." THE ONLY ORGANS AWARDED THIS RANK.

This Medal and Award was granted after the most severe competition of the best makers, before one of the most competent juries ever assembled.

New Styles and prices just issued, which are in accordance with our rule, the BEST ORGAN for the least money.

We are prepared to appoint a few new Agents.

TESTIMONIALS.

The Eureka is superior to any side-cut machine I ever used or ever saw in use. HARRIS LEWIS,
President of New York Dairymen's Asso.

The curing of the grass cut with the Eureka Mower is more even and rapid than after the side-cut machines.
GEORGE W. HOFFMAN,
President Farmers' Club, Elmira, N. Y.

The Eureka Mower is the very best we ever saw, and there is no side-cut mower that can compare with it in any respect.
V. G. FIOLLET,
State Grange Lecturer, Wysox, P.

The manner in which it leaves the cut grass, loose and open to the sun and wind ready for drying, puts the Eureka far ahead of any machine I ever used. B. LAPORTE, Asylum, Pa.

The Millheim Journal.

THURSDAY, JANUARY 15, 1880

B. O. DEININGER, - - - EDITOR.

R. A. BUMILLER, - - ASSISTANT EDITOR.

Local Department.

—Not long till Spring election. Have you decided what office you will have?

—Postmasters are now required to stamp the date when letters arrive, on the back thereof.

—Job work of all kinds done at the JOURNAL Office at prices as cheap as the cheapest.

A fine ladies kid glove was found and left at the Journal Office. The owner will please call for it.

—The Lutheran festival at Centre Hall during Christmas week realized about $150, which we think was very well done.

—A splendid private residence with the good will of a medical practice for sale. For particulars apply at this office. tf.

—At Stam's store you can get of the best choice syrup at 75 cts. a gallon. It is claimed to be the best syrup in town. Go and try it.

—A splendid line of Family and Pocket Bibles just received at the Journal Book Store, very cheap. Call and see.

—Samuel Snyder gives notice that he is appointed Administrator with will annexed, of his father, George Snyder's estate, late of Haines township, deceased.

—Mr. J. J. Everett, of the Bee Hive store, Lock Haven, was presented with a fine copy of Josephus' Works, by his Sunday School class, on Christmas.

—Mr. Walter Diefenbach's S. S. class in Harrisburg presented him with ten volumes of Chambers' Encyclopecia as a Christmas gift.

—Spring Mills is to have a musical convention from the 19th to the 23rd inst. Prof. P. H. Meyer will conduct the convention, and he is just as fit to do it as any man this side of Idaho territory.

—The leading stores and business houses of Lewisburg have concluded to "shut up" in the evening at 7 o'clock. Well now that's a good move. There's no sense in keeping men away from their wives and children until nine, ten and eleven o'clock. Bravo, Lewisburgers.

—The seven mammoth hogs killed by the proprietor of the Broadway House, Milton, on New Year's day, weighed as follows: 773, 519, 494, 505½, 501, 507 and 433, making a total of 3.732½ pounds. Six of these porkers were only fourteen months old, and the heaviest was a little over two years old.—Ex.

—At the last regular meeting of the Millheim Cornet Band it was resolved by a vote of the members that after Monday, the 12th inst. no spectators will be allowed in the Town Hall at the time of their meetings.

F. P. Otto, Sec. J. F. Harter, Pres.

—Last Saturday the Lemont Band paid the Millheim Cornet Band a visit and discoursed some good music. We understand, that the object of their visit was, to bargain for the band wagon, built by this band a year ago.

—The friends of conductor Furey—train men, agents and patrons of the Road—presented him, recently, a beautiful gold watch and chain of great value. 'Tis an open-faced Railroad Time Keeper—heavy case, manufactured in Rockville, Ill. It bears the inscription, "Presented to F. M. Furey by his friends; Christmas, 1879." The presentation address was made by J. T. Baker, Esq., who so well knows how to do such things. The conductor can't recall what he did say in reply; but his friends say his words came from the heart.—Mifflinburg Telegraph.

—The 7th annual Musical Convention of the Penna. Cen. Musical Association, will commence Monday evening, Jan. 19., 1880, in the College Hall at Freeburg, Pa., and continue in session till Friday. Boarding, instruction and admission to the concerts for session, only $2.00. Address, F. C. Moyer, Musical Director. Three concerts will be given on Wednesday, Thursday and Friday evenings, Jan. 21., 22. and 23. Rehearsals every morning, afternoon and evening. Members should be present the first day.

A KIND REQUEST. It is now again the season of the year when people who have system in their business, pay their small debts, among which is their newspaper subscription. Now please don't forget us. Our expenses are heavy and constant, our subscription price very low and it is absolutely necessary that we should be paid regularly. It is the time of the year, too, when men have many extraordinary expenses, preparatory for Winter. So please don't forget us when you come to town. Just see how you can please us by the payment of a few dollars.

SPRING MILLS ITEMS.

Snow—Snow—Snow.

Rev. Whitney preached one of his able sermons on Sunday evening to a very select audience.

The Musical Convention, next week, will be a treat for all lovers of music. Hope to see a great many attend.

Everybody should attend the meeting of the Star Literary Society on Thursday evening, Jan. 15., '80, as it is a public meeting and will in all probability prove a success.

Last will be the public granger meeting in Grenoble's Hall. No doubt able speakers will be present. YONEY.

NEWS FROM BRUSH.

Owing to the fact that Anon, your former correspondent from our valley has failed to make his appearance for quite a time, we will volunteer to step in and take his chair, if satisfactory to all concerned. What say ye editor? *

The only thing we could utter of late was mud! mud! mud! but a kind Providence seems to put an end to it now, as the snow is "fastly falling."

Protracted meeting in the Evangelical church.

Prof. Meyer's health is somewhat impaired at present—the school urchin need not dread his coming this week.

The teachers of our township have organized a District Institute, for the benefit of themselves and pupils. This is right, teachers let your lights shine.

Mr. Simon Harper and lady of Bellefonte, are spending a part of their honeymoon in our valley among their many friends.

Mr. L. H. Leitzell has taken unto himself a help meet in the person of Josie M Roush; also C. O. Mallory has promised to be the supporter of Minnie Lose for life. Three of the above named parties are school teachers and citizens of Rebersburg. If the marriage of priests is prohibited, we are certain the above is evidence that the marriage of teachers is not. Success to you Law. and Cal. QUIS?

[* Go in. We miss Anon's contributions very much, but will welcome you as a correspondent. With some practice, Mr. Quis, you will do pretty well. Don't be discouraged, though, if your news are not from the start as good as Anon's Fragments. "Practice makes perfect." Ed.]

AARONSBURG CRUMBS.

On last Friday death came to the relief of Mrs. Breon. Her sufferings for some time, from hunger, are said to have been intense. She had the sympathy of all.

Miss Jennie Fisher, a daughter of Mr. Christ. Fisher, formerly of this place, is on a visit to her friends here—renewing her acquaintance with those whose names she remembers, but whose faces have been forgotten.

Dr. John Twitmyer came and went in such haste, that he scarcely gave himself time to inquire after the friends of other days much less to see them. He does not look at all as though the practice of medicine was going to wear him out very speedily.

Mr. and Mrs. Yearick have returned from a trip to Philadelphia. Miss Rachael Yearick presided in the store during their absence, and it seemed quite like old times to see her there.

Mr. James Holloways have moved into the house with Mr. Philip Stover, on Back Street.

Mrs. Sommer was summoned to the sick bed of her brother. She has not yet returned.

Mr. B. F. Edmonds and Mr. C. E. Edmonds and wife, spent the holidays in town. Mr. Jacob Stover was home too about that time. The Snyder county teachers express themselves well pleased with their work.

I hear there is a little girl out in Strasburg, whose name begins with an F. who has not missed a day of school thus far. This same little girl they say gets up early in the morning and helps to do the work right smartly. She is such a nice girl when she is pleased, but when she is cross she makes—oh such an ugly, ugly face. Do you know who the little girl is, Mr. Editor? X. Y.

ECHOES FROM COBURN.

Jacob W. Moyer, while making logs, had the misfortune to cut a deep gash in his foot.

Another steamer passed through here on Friday on its way to Wm. Bower's woods, where sad havoc will soon be made among the gigantic monarchs of the forest.

Several cases of diphtheria have appeared in the neighborhood. Sanitary measures should be taken to prevent, if possible, the prevalence of this loathsome disease.

Samuel Ard is acquiring quite a reputation as a rifleman. Just the other day he effectually "settled off" a party of experts. Sam. had always been afraid of a gun, and it is but recently that he discovered his natural ability as a marksman.

Mr. Campbell, of the toll-gate is "batching it" at present, his wife being away on a visit to Northumberland county. XENAGORAS.

Sonnet.—On C O. M. committing Matrimony.

O thou bashful, inexperienced Muse
Standing outside the matrimonial gate
Wherethrough doth pass our friend with hope elate
In a new realm his stately form to lose:
Clasp hands and part, for we perforce must choose
A different path from his. May trinal Fate
Spin long his thread of life and cut it late,
And smooth his road for manhood's shoes.
No more with boon companions he the round
Shall run of evanescent pleasure's train,
Joining the care-free laugh and turmoil vain.
A more enduring pleasure has he found:
Henceforth his bark, from rocks and shallows free,
Explores the deeps of the connubial sea.

CARL SCHREIBER.

Senator Don Cameron has bought a lot on Vermont avenue, near the intersection of Massachusetts avenue, Washington, and will erect on it during the present year a $50,000 house. A telegram bearing the news adds that "the Senator expects to be a fixture in Washington for many years to come."

News Miscellaney.

An African lion hunter contributes the following: How to catch lions: The desert is composed of sand and lions. Take a sieve and sift the desert. The lions will remain. These you place in a bag which you carry with you for the purpose.

Indiana farmers are being swindled by a pleasant-looking man, who represents himself as an employee of the State Board of Agriculture. He is gathering statistics, and presents a blank in the following form:

Indiana State Board of Agriculture—Statistical Department—Data for 1880:

No. bushels of wheat raised
" " " corn "
" " " flax "
" " " oats "
" " " rye "
[With two-inch blank space here.]
[Signed]

Of course the obliging farmer writes out the results of his harvest and adds his signature, and the swindler rides away with his prize. When he has leisure he cuts off the statistics, fills out the blank space with a promissory note and negotiates the same at the nearest bank.

The disaster at the Tay Bridge in Scotland shows to be a most serious affair. The details of the tragedy will never be known in detail as not a single person on the illfated train escaped. The tram left Edinburgh at fifteen minutes past four in the afternoon. It consisted of four third-class cars, one first-class and one second-class and the brakesmen's van. The night was one of bright moonlight, but the wind was blowing a hurricane. It is believed that during the gale the gap in the bridge was made and that the train ran into the gap. Perhaps the bridge gave way with the train. The gap in the bridge is about half a mile long, comprising eleven of the longest spans, each 245 feet in length. It is not known how many persons were on the train, and the number is estimated at from 200 to 300. Only a few bodies have been found. The water at the Gap is twenty-five feet deep, but at the bottom is a quicksand into which the bodies would soon sink. The affair will be investigated.

FARMERS' RETURNS TO CENSUS TAKERS.—The farmers must look out for the census taker, who will begin his rounds on the first of next June and must complete them within that month The returns required of them will of course be for the year 1879, for the cereals, peas, beans, rice, tobacco, cotton, potatoes, fruits of all kinds, hay, clover, grass seed, hemp, flax, honey, sugar-cane, sorghum, and, in short, everything harvested in the Fall. For certain agricultural products there is no regular harvest, for they are gathered as they mature, week by week and day by day. These comprise butter, cheese, milk sold, value of animals slaughtered, yield of market gardens, timber of all kinds and home manufactures. The returns must be made as accurate as possible, but will be very little labor to the careful farmer.—Exchange.

Twenty kegs of gold were received in Chicago from New York a few days ago. Each weighing about three hundred pounds, and containing $75,000, making $1,500,000 in all. This money was sent by Jim Keene in payment for wheat.

The Pennsylvania Millers' State Association will meet in its fifth semi-annual convention in the Lochiel Hotel, at Harrisburg, on Tuesday, the 13th inst. Important business is to be transacted, including the election of officers for the ensuing year, the consideration of the propriety of changing the time of meetings, and to make arrangements to have the State creditably represented at the coming Millers' International Exposition at Cincinnati, Ohio, in June next. All who are interested in the industry are invited to attend the meeting. Excursion tickets will be issued on the railroads centering at Harrisburg, orders for which may be obtained upon application to the secretary of the association, A. Z. Schoch, Selinsgrove, Pa.

Monroe Snyder, a respected citizen of Bethlehem, who carried $65,000 insurance policies, was found February 23, 1863, dead in the Monocacy creek at that place, and wounds were found upon his person showing that he was murdered. The insurance companies resisted payment of the policies, but were finally compelled to pay. It has now been discovered, it is said, that he was murdered by hired men, and startling developments are promised.

At Aineville, Lehigh county, a blast in a quarry threw a stone five hundred yards and killed a woman who was feeding chickens in her back yard.

There is considerable excitement in Indiana and Kansas at the unexpected turn of affairs in the negro exodus business. The Indianapolis Sentinel reports that the negro immigrants to that State are dying of fever and starvation, naming nine cases in one house. The troublesome disease is the scarlet fever, brought on by want of food and lack of accommodations. Thirteen North Carolina negroes were found crowded into one small room, filthy in the extreme. Forty cases of fever among the negroes were reported in Indianapolis on Friday. Kansas specials to the St. Louis Republican says that negro immigrants en route north have been stopped by squads returning. There is no destitution, but the negroes complain of the bitter weather. A number left Cleburn hurriedly on Tuesday of last week when they heard that Jas. Schaefer had been frozen to death just west of town.

William Johnson, who has been in the employ of the United States Senate for nearly thirty years, and who has been doorkeeper at the main door of the Senate for a quarter of a century, finds himself at last dismissed and out in the cold.

ENTERPRISE.—A Williamsport paper says that some half dozen citizens of that city intend to apply for an act of Congress something as follows: To organize a great lumber manufactory in which all sorts of manufacturing will be done. The capital invested will be $500,000. The company to have the privilege of turning over to the Secretary of the Treasury, mortgages upon the establishment for the full amount of $500,000, to hold as security that the company will redeem its notes. Upon doing this, the U. S. Treasurer shall issue to the company $450,000 in notes to be called "National Lumberman's Notes," which this company may use in business or loan out at 6 per cent. Then to aid the enterprise still farther, a clause will be inserted, exempting the $500,000 capital from all taxation and agreeing to pay 5 per cent. interest on the same, so that those men may not have any fears of losing by reason of their generous investment.

Rouse Up

The liver if it is dormant, and avoid a train of evils which must otherwise ensue. Among anti-bilious medicines none rank so high as Hostetter's Stomach Bitters. It speedily banishes those pains in the region of the affected organ, the yellowness of the skin, nausea, vertigo and sick headache, which attend a bilious attack. A bilious subject, after a brief course of this capital liver stimulant and invigorant, finds that his tongue is no longer furred in the morning, his breath is grown sweeter, a hundred inexplicable sensations no longer make his life miserable, his bowels have acquired the steadiness of a well-regulated piece of mechanism, and he can eat with a hearty appetite and good digestion. It is because the bitters assists nature in her efforts to bring back the disordered liver and bowels to their normal condition, that it accomplishes such remarkable cures.

BOW-LEGS.—Mothers who desire to see their children physically upright should attend to this suggestion: Bow-legs and knock-knees are among the commonest deformities of humanity, and a Manchester (England) physician, Dr. Compton, attributes the first-mentioned distortion to a habit some youngsters delight in, of rubbing the sole of one foot against that of the other: some will go to sleep with the soles together. They appear to enjoy the contact only when the feet are naked: they don't attempt to make it when they are socked or slippered. So the remedy is obvious; keep the baby's soles covered. Knock-knees the doctor ascribes to a different childish habit, that of sleeping on the side, with one knee tucked under the hollow behind the other. He has found that when one leg has been bowed inward more than the other, the patient has always slept on one side, and the uppermost member has been the most deformed. Here the preventive is to pad the inside of the knees, so as to keep them apart, and let the limbs grow freely their own way.

ROAST PIG.—Choose a young pig, with thin delicate ears, fringe on the tongue, plump hams and curly tail. Shave off all the hairs, or burn them off with a white hot poker, using it carefully and quickly enough not to burn the skin. Dress the pig, saving the heart, liver and kidneys, which you must wash, slice, fry in a very little fat, and then chop fine. Wash the pig, dry it well with a clean cloth, stuff it with force-meat, sew it up, tie or skewer the legs in place, tie up the ears and tail in buttered paper, to prevent burning, and put it into a dripping pan, with the following vegetables; Half a medium-sized carrot, one onion, a few sprigs of parsley, and a bay leaf. Brush the pig thoroughly with salad oil or melted butter: put it into a hot oven until the crackling is set, basting it every fifteen minutes. A medium-sized pig will cook in from two to two and a half hours.

VEGETINE has never failed to effect a cure, giving tone and strength to the system debilitated by disease.

RAISED PIE.—An excellent dessert for a Thanksgiving dinner is raised pie. The paste for raised pies is made of a quarter of a pound of butter, and one egg to a pound of flour, and enough of cold water to work these ingredients up. This paste is used to line a mould which is then filled with alternate layers of game, the yolks of hard-boiled eggs and highly seasoned force-meat; an ornamental cover of pastry is fitted on and the pie is baked in a slow oven for four hours; after it is cooked a cut is made in the cover, and it is filled with some rich gravy which will form a jelly when cold. The pie is eaten when cold.

ONION SAUCE.—Boil some onions in milk with pepper, salt and nutmeg. When quite done, pass them through a seive. Put some butter and flour into a saucepan; when the butter is melted, and well mixed with the flour, put in the pulp of the onions and add either milk or cream, stirring the sauce on the fire until it is of the desired consistency.

A LADY'S WISH.—Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters, that makes pure rich blood and blooming health. It did for me, as you observe." Read of it.

Thank God for Anakesis!!!

WELLFLEET, MASS., April 10, 1876.

MESSRS. NEUSTAEDTER & Co.

Dear Sirs: Enclosed you will find one dollar, for which please send me a box of Anakesis. Direct it to Mulford Rich, Jr., Wellfleet, Barnstable Co., Mass. My wife has suffered terribly with piles for ten years, and had tried all kinds of remedies that she could hear of without much relief. Last summer I happened to hear of Anakesis when I was in Boston and so I procured a box and she experienced immediate relief. She says she can exclaim with the celebrated professor: Thank God for Anakesis! She gave part of the contents of the box to a friend of her's in Provincetown, and they helped her so that she sent the next day and bought some. The most of the inhabitants of this place and vicinity are sea-faring people, and by being exposed to wet and cold, and hard pulling at ropes, nine out of ten are troubled with piles, and have tried so many remedies without relief that they are discouraged and have no faith in anything, but I know that they are a good article. Now I will tell you my plan; I am a peddler and travel in Barnstable county, and times are so hard that money is very scarce, but if I can afford it this summer I want to buy about a dozen boxes on purpose to give away to the unbelievers, and I think that by so doing, and being acquainted with so many people, that I could get up quite a trade in Anakesis if you would give me the sole right of this county.

Yours truly,
MULFORD RICH, JR.

Anakesis is sold by all first-class druggists. Price $1 00 per box. Samples mailed free to all sufferers, on application to P. Neustaedter & Co., Box 3946, New York.

HUMOROUS.

THE OLD MAN WOULDN'T BE SLIGHTED.—A passer-by puts his head in at the window of the shop where an honest cobbler is working, never thinking of evil, and says cheerily: "Well, my friend, how many thieves are there in this street without counting you?" "What!" yells the cobbler, "without counting me?" "Well, then," says his imperturbable questioner, "how many are there count ng you?"

A COUNTRY doctor, being out for a day's shooting took his errand boy to carry the game-bag. Entering a field of turnips the dog pointed; and the boy, overjoyed at the prospect of his master's success, exclaimed, "Lor, master, there's a covey; if you get near 'em won't you physic 'em!" "Physic them, you young rascal? what do you mean?" said the doctor. "Why, kill 'em to be sure," replied the lad.

A COUPLE of young men staying unconscionably late one night with their sweethearts, were surprised to see the "old man" looking about the hall and finally the parlor as though in search of something. "What are you looking for, pa?" at last asked one of the girls. "The morning papers!" growled the old man, and the young men took a hasty leave.

"MAMMA," said Harry Thomas, a bright little fellow living over in Algiers, "Mamma, have my toes got eyes?" "No, my darling; why do you ask such a foolish question?" "Because my foot's asleep."

FATHER: "And so papa's dear little boy is very ill. Now is there anything I can get him that will make him feel better?" Invalid; "I don't know, papa—but—I think I would like a gong."

MISTRESS (to her late, servant)—"Well, Mary, how have you been since you left me, and where are you living now?" Ye servant—"Please ma'am, I don't live anywhere, ma'am; I'm married, ma'am."

AMATEUR Composer—"Heard my last new song?" Candid Friend(with a perceptible shudder)—Oh, Lor! I hope so!"

CAUSE AND EFFECT.—The main cause of nervousness is indigestion, and that is caused by weakness of the stomach. No one can have sound nerves and good health without using Hop Bitters to strengthen the stomach, purify the blood, and keep the liver and kidneys active, to carry off all the poisonous and waste matter of the system. See other column.

ONE COLD IS SOMETIMES CONTRACTED ON TOP OF ANOTHER, the accompanying Cough becoming settled and confirmed, and the Lungs so strained and racked that the production of tubercles frequently follows. Many existing cases of Pulmonary Disease may be thus accounted for, and yet how many others are now carelessly allowing themselves to drift through the preliminary symptoms, controlled by the fatal policy of allowing a cold to take care of itself. On the first intimation of a Cough or Cold, or any Throat or Lung trouble, resort promptly to Dr. Jayne's Expectorant, a safe curative of long established reputation, and you may avoid the consequences of such dangerous trifling.

Pilgrimages to Buffalo, N. Y.,

are made by thousands of invalids annually to consult with the medical and surgical staff of the World's Dispensary and Invalids' Hotel, the largest private sanitarium in the world. All chronic diseases are treated by scientific methods. The practice is divided among nine eminent specialists. Among the most popular domestic medicines in the land are those manufactured by this Association, among which are Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery, the greatest of alteratives or blood-cleansers, and Dr. Pierce's Pellets (little pills) that have largely superseded the old-fashioned coarse pills. Compound Extract of Smart Weed is deservedly popular as a remedy for diarrhœa, dysentery, flux, and kindred diseases; also as a pain-killer and remedy for colds. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the great remedy for female weaknesses and associated derangements. Dr. Sage's Catarrh Remedy is the "Old Reliable." Invalid's Guide Book—10 cents, post-paid. Address World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., or London, England.

TOADS AND SQUIRRELS IN WELLS.—The quantity and variety of filthy matter which is found deposited at the bottom of wells, in some localities, are astonishing. We recently had occasion to examine the debris taken from a well which had been cleaned the year previous, and among the accumulations were decaying toads and squirrels. These creatures had been probably attracted by the water, to reach which they had clambered down the wall till they reached the solid rock into which, for several feet, the well had been excavated, when they were percipitated to the bottom, and could not retrace their steps. To obviate a repetition of the same annoyance the stone wall has been removed down to the solid rock, relaid in hydraulic cement, and carried some three feet above the surface of the ground and finished for some distance around the top with cement underlaid with stones. On this solid foundation a curb has been so closely fitted as to exclude even crickets and grasshoppers, which are so apt to find their way into wells. To those who detest impure water and would avoid perhaps the sickness of an entire family, the above plan, or the adoption of some better precaution against the contamination of wells, is recommended. This is the season when springs and wells are usually low of water, and therefore it is the best time for cleaning the bottom of the latter and repairing the walls if found defective.

THE price of soap is rapidly advancing. A year's supply of DOBBINS' ELECTRIC bought now at old price will be a very judicious purchase.

Wood Stains—To turn oak black so as to cause it to resemble ebony the wood should be immersed for forty eight hours in a hot saturated solution of alum, and then drushed over several times with a log wood decoction, prepared as follows: Boil one part of best logwood with ten parts of water, filter through linen, and evaporate at a gentle heat until the volume is reduced one half. To every quart of this add ten or fifteen drops of a saturated solution of indigo, completely neutral. After applying this dye to the wood, rub the latter with a saturated and filtered solution of verdigris in hot concentrated acetic acid, and repeat the operation until a black of the desired intensity is obtained. Five minutes suffice ordinarily to give a deep color. A few trials will indicate the proportions.

VEGETINE

KIDNEY COMPLAINT.
DISEASE OF THE KIDNEYS.

The symptoms of an acute attack of inflammation of the kidneys are as follows: Fever, pain in the small of the back, and thence shooting downward; numbness of the thigh, vomiting usually at first a deep red color of the urine, which becomes pale and colorless as the disease increases, and is discharged very often with pain and difficulty; costiveness, and some degree of colic. In chronic diseases of the kidneys the symptoms are pain in the back and limbs, dryness of the skin, frequent urination (especially at night), general dropsy, headache, dizziness of sight, indigestion, and palpitation of the heart, gradual loss of strength, paleness and puffiness of the face, cough and shortness of breath.

In diseases of the kidneys the Vegetine gives immediate relief. It has never failed to cure when it is taken regularly and directions followed. In many cases it may take several bottles, especially cases of long standing. It acts directly upon the secretions, cleansing and strengthening, removing all obstructions and impurities. A great many can testify to cases of long standing having been perfectly cured by the Vegetine, even after trying many of the known remedies which are said to be expressly for this disease.

Kidney Complaints.
I Gained Sixteen Pounds.

CINCINNATI, O., March 17, 1877.

MR. H. R. STEVENS:

Dear Sir.—I have been a great sufferer from Kidney Complaint, and after the use of a few bottles of Vegetine I find myself entirely cured. I gained sixteen pounds in flesh while taking the Vegetine. I will cheerfully recommend it.

Yours truly, W. T. ARCHER,
No. 330 West Sixth Street.

From 5 to 9 copies, to one address, $1.50 each. From 10 to 19 copies, to one address, $1.25 each. Twenty copies or more to one address, $1.00 each. No charge for postage. Proportionate rates for less than a year. Twenty teachers can be supplied for three months for $5.00. While the paper for a club must be sent in a package to one address, the publisher requires that each club subscription be accompanied with a list of the names and addresses of the persons who are to use the paper. The Sunday School Times will be sent on trial for a year subscriber every week for three months for 25 cents. Specimen free. Send also for a free specimen of The Scholars' Quarterly, a 48 page scholars' lesson help, containing colored map, etc. The Quarterly will be improved for 1880, and its price reduced. Address

HEALTH IS WEALTH.
Health of Body is Wealth of Mind.
Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

Pure blood makes sound flesh, strong bone and a clear skin. If you would have your flesh firm, your bones sound, without caries, and your complexion fair, use Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

A GRATEFUL RECOGNITION.

"To cure a CHRONIC OR LONG STANDING DISEASE is truly a victory in the healing art; that reasoning power that clearly discerns DEFECT and supplies a remedy; that restores step by step—by degrees—the body which has been slowly attacked and weakened by an insidious disease, not only commands our respect but deserves our gratitude. Dr. Radway has furnished mankind with that wonderful remedy, Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent, which accomplishes this result, and suffering humanity, who drag out an existence of pain and disease, through long days and long nights, owe him their gratitude."—Medical Messenger.

FALSE AND TRUE.

We extract from Dr. Radway's "Treatise on Disease and Its Cure," as follows:

List of Diseases Cured by
Radway's Sarsaparillian Resolvent.

Chronic Skin Diseases, Caries of the Bone, Humors in the Blood, Scrofulous Diseases, Bad or unnatural Habit of Body, Syphilis and Venereal, Fever Sores, Chronic or Old Ulcers, Salt Rheum, Rickets, White Swelling, Scald Head, Uterine Affections, Cankers, Glandular Swellings, Nodes, Wasting and Decay of the Body, Pimples and Blotches Tumors, Dyspepsia, Kidney and Bladder Diseases, Chronic Rheumatism and Gout, Consumption, Gravel and Calculous Deposits, and varieties of the above complaints to which sometimes are given specious names.

We assert that there is no known remedy that possesses the curative power over these diseases that RADWAY'S RESOLVENT furnishes. It cures step by step surely, from the foundation, and restores the injured parts to their sound condition. The wastes of the body are stopped and healthy blood is supplied to the system, from which new material is formed. This is the first corrective power of RADWAY'S RESOLVENT. In cases where the system has been salivated and Mercury, Quicksilver Corrosive Sublimate have accumulated and become deposited in the bones, joints, etc., causing caries of the bones, rickets, spinal curvatures, contortions, white swellings, varicose veins, etc., the SARSAPARILLIAN will release away those deposits and exterminate the virus of the disease from the system.

If those who are taking these medicines for the cure of Chronic, Scrofulous or Syphilitic diseases, however slow may be the cure, "feel better," and find their general health improving, their flesh and weight increasing, or even keeping its own, is a sure sign that the cure is progressing. In these diseases the patient either gets better or worse—the virus of the disease is not inactive; if not arrested and driven from the blood it will spread and continue to undermine the constitution. As soon as the SARSAPARILLIAN makes the patient "feel better," every hour you will grow better and increase in health, strength and flesh.

OVARIAN TUMORS.

The removal of these tumors by RADWAY'S RESOLVENT is now so certainly established that what was once considered almost miraculous is now a common recognized fact by all parties. Witness the cases of Hannah P. Knapp, Mrs. C. Knapf, Mrs. J. H. Jolly and Mrs. P. D. Hendrix, published in our Almanac for 1879; also that of Mrs. C. S. Bibbins, in the present edition of our "False and True."

One Dollar per Bottle.

MINUTE REMEDY.

Only requires minutes, not hours, to relieve pain and cure acute disease.

Radway's Ready Relief,

In from one to twenty minutes, never fails to relieve PAIN with one thorough application. No matter how violent or excruciating the pain the RHEUMATIC, Bed-ridden, Infirm, Crippled, Nervous, Neuralgic, or prostrated with disease may suffer, RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will afford instant ease.

Inflammation of the Kidneys, Inflammation of the Bladder, Inflammation of the Bowels, Congestion of the Lungs, Sore Throat, Difficult Breathing, Palpitation of the Heart, Hysterics, Croup, Diphtheria, Catarrh, Influenza, Headache, Toothache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Cold Chills, Ague Chills, Chilblains, Frost Bites, Bruises, Summer Complaints, Coughs, Cold, Sprains, Pains in the Chest, Back or Limbs, are instantly relieved.

FEVER AND AGUE.

Fever and Ague cured for Fifty Cents. There is not a remedial agent in the world that will cure Fever and Ague, and all other Malarious, Bilious, Scarlet, Typhoid, Yellow and other fevers (aided by RADWAY'S PILLS) so quick as RADWAY'S READY RELIEF.

It will in a few moments, when taken according to directions, cure Cramps, Spasms, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Sick Headache, Diarrhœa, Dysentery, Colic, Wind in the Bowels, and all Internal Pains.

Travelers should always carry a bottle of RADWAY'S READY RELIEF with them. A few drops in water will prevent sickness or pains from change of water. It is better than French brandy or bitters as a stimulant.

Miners and Lumbermen should always be provided with it.

CAUTION.

All remedial agents capable of destroying life by an overdose should be avoided. Morphine, opium, strychnine, arnica, hyoscyamus, and other powerful remedies, does at certain times, in very small doses, relieve the patient during their action in the system. But perhaps the second dose, if repeated, may aggravate and increase the suffering, and another dose cause death. There is no necessity for using these uncertain agents when a positive remedy like RADWAY'S READY RELIEF will stop the most excruciating pain quicker, without entailing the least difficulty in either infant or adult.

THE TRUE RELIEF.

RADWAY'S READY RELIEF is the only remedial agent in vogue that will instantly stop pain.

Fifty Cents per Bottle.
